

Travel

Transport for London (TfL) has warned of several closures and amendments to Tube stations across central and west London.

Entry into Oxford Circus station will be restricted at times for safety, and most stations within the Carnival area will either be exit only or use one-way systems. Some stations may also close for short periods of time to manage crowding, so don't be shocked if you're told to queue outside a station.

The Tube is expected to be busy on Carnival days, particularly on the Central line that runs through central London as well as the Carnival area.

The following Tube stations will also be closed or heavily restricted on both days over the bank holiday weekend:

- Ladbroke Grove: Closed all day.
- Latimer Road: Closes at 11pm and may close during busy periods.
- Notting Hill Gate: No entry between 11am and 6pm. The District and Circle lines will not stop, and there will be no interchange between the Central and District and Circle lines.
- Westbourne Park: No entry from 11am.
- Holland Park: No entry after 11am and the station closes at 3pm.
- Queensway: No entry between 11am and 6pm.
- Royal Oak: No entry after 11am and the station closes at 6pm.
- Shepherd's Bush: No ticket issuing facilities and no 'down' escalator after 4pm.
- Kensal Green: Queues outside the station are expected.
- Kensal Rise: Chamberlayne Road entrance closes at 6pm, and a queuing system will begin outside Station Terrace entrance.

TfL advises anyone attending the Carnival to walk from Paddington, Kensal Rise or Shepherd's Bush stations.

TfL said: 'For the easiest and least crowded journey, take the Tube or Elizabeth line to Paddington Station. Notting Hill Carnival is a short walk away. Follow the signed route to and from the carnival.'

What about bus routes?

Special bus routes will be in place during the Carnival while other routes are disrupted. (Picture: Dan Kitwood/Getty Images)

It's not just the Tube that is affected this weekend – buses will be, too.

Both day and night buses will be diverted away from the Carnival area. To the north, buses will start from the Prince of Wales pub on Harrow Road, while buses to the south will start from Notting Hill Gate.

According to TfL, affected bus routes include:

- Day buses: 7, 18, 23, 27, 28, 31, 36, 52, 70, 228, 295, 302, 316, 328
- Night buses: N7, N27, N28, N31

There will be special limited-stop bus services put on for Carnival weekend, and they include:

- 148X to Victoria and Vauxhall: Runs between Notting Hill Gate and Victoria between 10am and 5pm, and then Notting Hill Gate and Vauxhall until 10pm.
- 7X to East Acton: Runs between Oxford Circus and Paddington and Du Cane Road and East Acton.
- 36X to Harrow Road: Runs between Peckham and Harrow Road in one direction only.
- 18X to Stonebridge Park: Runs between Warren Street and Stonebridge Park between midday and 10pm.
- 23X to Victoria: Runs between Harrow Road, Prince of Wales, and Victoria for four trips on Monday afternoon only.